The Global Compact on Refugee calls for a multi-stakeholder and partnership approach to refugee responses that meaningfully engages those they are intended to protect and assist. This side event will facilitate a dialogue between refugees and other stakeholders on the importance of meaningful participation and inclusion of refugees in policy, decision-making and other processes. Panelists will discuss good practices developed by different actors across sectors to include refugees in decision-making and facilitate self-representation in policy-making and response development processes. Refugee engagement in pledge making at the Global Refugee Forum will also be discussed.
