Presentation of the GCR Indicator Report 2025

Ms. Grace Sanico Steffan

Senior Statistics and Data Analysis Officer, UNHCR

Third edition: Builds on lessons learned from previous editions

Decade-long insights: 2016-2025, where data is available

4 GCR objectives: Tracks progress using 16 GCR indicators, supported by qualitative analysis

Burden- and responsibility-sharing: Measures of disparities among countries hosting refugees and providing durable solutions

Data limitations: Indicator on returnees with documentation, timeliness, indicators on inclusion

Burden- and responsibility-sharing

After 2022, the growth of the total number of refugees slowed down and remained stable, reaching 36.6 million in mid-2025.

Progress was made in responsibility-sharing,

but disparities remained.

In 2024,
countries with just 27% of global wealth hosted 80% of the world's refugees.

Prioritize support for low-income countries, which possess only 0.6% of global wealth yet host 19% of all refugees.

Low-income countries

High-income countries

Objective 1: Ease pressures on host countries

Official Development Assistance (ODA) for refugee situations in low- and middle-income countries amounted to USD 54.9 billion in 2020-2023,

Objective 1: Ease pressures on host countries

but support is unevenly distributed and declining.

Objective 2: Enhance refugee self-reliance

In 2024

6 out 10 of refugees had access to work in law

5 out 10 of
refugees had access to formal employment

Objective 2: Enhance refugee self-reliance

In 2024, nearly half of refugee children could go to public schools.

Objective 2: Enhance refugee self-reliance

Inclusive work policies reduce refugee poverty and benefit the economies of host communities.

Objective 3: Expand access to third country solutions

RESETTLEMENT SURPASSED the annual target in 2024, before numbers DROPPED SHARPLY in 2025.

Objective 4: Support conditions in countries of origin for return in safety and dignity

Funding for returnees far below needs:

Funding for returnees amounted to

USD 1.9 BILLION (2020-2023), far below the level needed to match the sharp rise in returnee numbers.

Advancing refugee data

STATISTICAL INCLUSION IS MAKING GOOD STRIDES, advanced through multi-stakeholder pledges.

GCR data gaps:

- Progress is FRAGILE
- Funding cuts THREATEN

“As we look ahead to the Global Refugee Forum Progress Review in December 2025, it is essential to sustain momentum and to reaffirm our collective commitment to the principles outlined in the Global Compact on Refugees. Nobody should imagine any of this will be easy. But neither must we resign ourselves to fatalism.”

Filippo Grandi
United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees
