

Global Strategic P

UNHCR's Global Strategic Priorities (GSPs) for 2014 and 2015 represent important areas where the Office is making concerted efforts through its operations to strengthen protection, improve the quality of life and seek solutions for refugees and other people of concern. Intended as a common set of key priorities and a "blueprint" for planning in UNHCR operations worldwide, they are meant to bring the programmes into line with international standards.

The Operational GSPs are complemented by a separate set of Support and Management priorities, which represent UNHCR's commitments to improving its organizational effectiveness in important areas ranging from protection and results-based management to financial accountability, emergency response and humanitarian coordination.

As in previous years, the GSP results are key inputs for UNHCR's programme cycle. The implementation of the 2014-2015 GSPs will build on achievements of the last biennium which have brought tangible differences to the lives of many refugees and others of concern. In addition, their implementation will address pressing needs that have been identified in a number of operations in recent years, through careful analysis of experience in using the 2012-2013 set. At Headquarters, the GSP results are an important lens for reviewing and approving operations plans submitted by the Field.

When analysing the operational GSPs and their impact on the lives of people of concern, the 20 impact indicators provide important insight into how UNHCR is performing; however, these should not be considered as providing the full picture of a GSP area, which is much broader. UNHCR's institutional commitment is to pursue the 2014-2015 GSPs in a full and comprehensive way with field operations shaping their planning accordingly. This includes selecting relevant impact indicators, whether or not they are part of the GSP framework; setting baselines and targets; and reporting on progress.

REFINING THE GSPs 2014-2015

In 2012, the High Commissioner launched a review of the GSPs with UNHCR senior management and member States, including a comprehensive stocktaking of their relevance and use in field operations and at Headquarters. Overall, the review process confirmed that the GSPs for 2012-2013 – which had been carefully identified through broad consultations – remained relevant. It was agreed that continuity in terms of the content of the GSPs and sustained engagement toward their achievement over several years was important in order to achieve and measure progress.

An informal consultative meeting (ICM) of members of the Executive Committee and NGO partners in February 2013 identified several areas where the GSPs could be expanded or reinforced, and this information was taken into consideration in the revision process. For example, the 2014-2015 framework incorporates a new GSP which focuses on coexistence with hosting communities. The new set also reflects strengthened focus in such areas as gender, child protection and self-reliance. At the same time, the ICM affirmed support for the goals of keeping the priorities focused and manageable.

Following this consultative process, the High Commissioner approved the 2014-2015 GSPs at the beginning of March 2013. Going forward, UNHCR will continue to present "Global Engagements" in order to provide comprehensive reporting on progress and to highlight trends in the GSP areas. The global engagements provide a lens for viewing and measuring UNHCR's achievements in the GSP areas from a global perspective. They aim to communicate the organization's commitment to maintaining or improving the living situation, or the circumstances of refugees and others of concern in all operations that have prioritized related activities. UNHCR's global engagements for 2014-2015 are shown in the right-hand column of the matrix in this chapter.

CHALLENGES IN IMPLEMENTING THE GSPs 2014-2015

Progress on the GSPs 2014-2015 depends upon a range of factors, not all of which UNHCR can control. The desired positive impact for people of concern can only be achieved in close collaboration and through well-coordinated activities with the displaced communities themselves and their hosting States, as well as the Office's other partners, including non-governmental organizations, UN agencies and national organizations. For example, UNHCR plays an important, but necessarily limited, role in promoting the enactment of new legislation on refugee protection, internal displacement and statelessness.

In other situations, deteriorating security conditions may interfere with access and prevent UNHCR from achieving targets. In emergencies, UNHCR operations managers may have to urgently reallocate available resources toward meeting critical, life-saving needs. This can effectively place different GSP areas, such as nutrition and durable solutions, in competition with each other. Resources will continue to be a key constraint as the Office embarks on implementation of the 2014-2015 priorities. ■
