INCLUSIVE MARKET SYSTEM

Improving livelihoods of forcibly displaced persons and host communities through economic & financial inclusion

What makes a market system inclusive?

Drawing on the expertise of three UN agencies and a financial service provider in Jordan, this side event will discuss the range of interventions needed to enable displaced persons to contribute to their own economic well-being as well as that of their host communities. It will explore the importance of market and labour assessments, targeted value chains, strengthened capacity-building measures, and access to financial services in order to overcome the various challenges that they face.
